Good morning , we don't have summer school on Friday's so I just saw your email this morning. I think Jennifer is fabulous. She is one of the best Choosing the Best speakers I have heard and I have seen a bunch of them, I'm not trying to dodge the issue but I honestly don't know if she said those things are not. You know how it is.I have sat through the lessons so many times that I really don't hear it anymore. I'm usually grading papers, working on the computer etc. By no means do I hear everything the speakers say. My wife was in there that day as well and she's in the same boat I am. She doesn't know for sure if any of those things were said either. Sorry I'm not much help other than saying it's obvious that Jennifer has a passion for what she does and she is very good at it. I didn't hear anything inappropriate.

Dear Mr. & Mrs. McLane,

It is my understanding that Jennifer McCullough from our Impact Program spoke to your health class. I'm sure you are aware of the accusations on FB after class at Brookwood on June 7. We attended the Gwinnett County Board Meeting last night and felt that it went pretty well other than the misinformation that was shared. I have complete confidence in Jennifer and her ability to teach the curriculum. I would like to ask you if Jennifer said any of the things they are accusing her of saying. As the Executive Director it is my responsibility to follow up as closely as I can. Below are the key things Jennifer is being accused of saying.

"If she didn't drink, she wouldn't get raped."

"People get pregnant for attention these days."

"If you think it's bad to put a piece of candy in your mouth after someone, imagine someone's vagina. Where were your mouths last night."

And after the candy exercise saying that no one else wants you after you have been used.

If she indeed did not say these things, do you have any idea how it all got misconstrued?

I so appreciate your cooperation. If you would rather talk to me than answer via email, my cell is 770-601-5514.

Thank you for the opportunity to serve at Brookwood!
